BRITAIN WILL CEDE CYPRUS IF GREECE WILL TAKE STAND WITH ENTEENTE.

SERB ARMY MENACED

Nish-Saloniki Railroad Reported Cut In Two Places While Mackensen Drives From North.

London, Oct. 21.—The entente powers are bringing all possible pressure to bear on Greece in order to obtain an unequivocal definition of her policy toward the other Balkan states, and the European belligerent nations. They have intimated clearly that on account of the geographical position of Greece and her treaty obligations to Serbia, her announced policies of neutrality will be difficult if not impossible to maintain.

It has become a question in the opinion of the allied diplomats of not permitting Greece to continue what is considered an ambiguous policy until their opponents in the war are able to utilize the neutral position of Greece to their own advantage. The Greek government is now considering the British offer of the island of Cyprus, which, according to an Athens message, Britain will cede immediately on condition that Greece join the allies.

The Russian foreign minister has issued a statement that he considers the allies justified in adopting any measure to prevent their enemies of making advances of the neutral position of a third power. The fields of the allies already have established a close blockade of the Aegean coast of Bulgaria.

FAMOUS ACTRESS SAYS COFFEE HARMS COMPLEXION

Declares Coffee Habit Grows on One, Dulls the Mind, and Weakens the Muscles.

People who desire to retain youthful looks and a clear, healthy skin, may be surprised to learn that an eminent authority on beauty as Lillian Russell declares, in a recent issue of the Chicago Herald, that both coffee and tea have a harmful effect on the complexion. The youthful skin can be made dry and sallow by the over indulgence of tea or coffee.

"I always depresses me when I hear a woman say I must have a cup of coffee the first thing in the morning, and generally sip it in bed. She would be shocked if she heard someone else say that they must have a cocktail before they could begin the day."
"I heard a most beautiful old woman say, 'Do you think I would dry up my blood and ruin my skin by drinking tea?'"
"The coffee habit grows on one, and when coffee is used as a stimulant there is a reaction, which means depression and causes over indulgence in the use of stronger stimulants. In the continued use, stimulants dull the mind and weaken the muscles."
NOTE.—It is a satisfaction to know that in the pure food drink, Infant Postum, increasing thousands are finding a delightful morning beverage—a beverage free from drugs or any harmful substance, and free from coffee's stimulating and drying elements supplied by nature with building good blood and strong, healthy bodies.

BLODGETT MILL HAS TREACHEROUS BLAZE

Breaking of Electric Light Bulb in Buckwheat Bin Starts Fire Last Evening.

But for the sprinkling fire system at the Blodgett mill on North River street, the buildings would have been destroyed by fire last night or at least immense damage caused to the property. The quick operating of the sprinkling system, not only checked the flames starting in a buckwheat feed bin, but made the discovery of the fire possible in its infant stage. The quick operating of the fire will employ placed an electric light bulb in the buckwheat feed bin located in the building facing the river. The bulb burst later and a flame of the broken light which had evidently dropped into the dry buckwheat during the afternoon. The grain caught fire and smoldered for hours. About seven o'clock the wooden walls and the bottom fell entirely out of the building, and the water coming through the floors and turned in the fire alarm.

After some delay, due to a misunderstanding of order, one lead of hose was strung from the hydrant up through one building, leading through a narrow stairway, across into the mill to the floor of the trouble. With the hose the fire was put out in a few minutes time with only small damage by the flames. While the fire loss is only small, hundreds of dollars' damage was caused by the water which flooded some parts of the building, ruining grain stored in the bins. There was about a carload of buckwheat in the bin which caught fire, and this is a total loss. Inspection of the building shows a fortunate escape from a most disastrous fire, for had the flames obtained a dangerous start, fire would have had the easiest path to travel, the building being nothing short of a fire-trap, and the grain chaff and mill powder would have been like gunpowder as an incentive for the flames.

While carrying a lead of hose up the narrow stairway, Captain Julius Tetziat slipped and fell some distance and severely injured his hip.

LARGE MEMBERSHIP AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Membership of Association is Checked Up and Found to Be Increased. —Boys' Work in Campaign.

The final checking up of the membership of the Y. M. C. A. has been finished and it was found that it is more than was given in the final standing of the inter-city contest. Up to date there are seven hundred and thirty members. The boys' department, that is, have made full or at least half payment on their dues. Some have taken out membership tickets but have not made payments. Secretary Therman says that these people come to the "Y" and use the same privileges as other members and get into the various activities that are going on.

The two teams in the boys' department membership campaign are working hard and are bringing in new members every day. The membership of this department is nearly double the number of what was expected. The total membership for this department is three hundred and sixty-four boys, all under sixteen years of age. In this campaign it is the aim to secure as many of the working boys as possible, and to make a total membership of four hundred boys. There are three teams and rivalry between the two teams and as they stand now the Blues are ahead, and the members of the team they will remain in that position all through the race until the finish in November.

It is claimed by the heirs that the aged woman has not received her due share.

HOPE OF BADGERS RAISES TO TITLE

With Solon Out and Illinois Weakened Wisconsin Championship Prospects Are Increased.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Oct. 21.—With Solon of the Gophers barred from participating in any future conference football contests, with Sprague of the Maroons on the injured list and with several Illinois players on the hospital list, Badger football chances for capturing the "big nine" title have been greatly enhanced.

"Bill" Juneau, Badger mentor, believes his team will land on top, barring any injuries. He classes Byers, Captain Buck and Eber Simpson as three of the best men in the conference. He also pins great faith in Eddie Stavrum, George Simpson and Lynn Smith.

Students are flocking to the gymnasium this week purchasing tickets for the Ohio State contest Saturday, which promises to be an interesting event. The Badgers do not fear Wisc's coming in the least. There is an unusually large mail order sale already for the contest.

It is the Chicago game which is causing much worry on the campus. The date over a hundred rooters have signified their intention to attend the game at Stagg Field, making the trip both ways in a cattle car. In this way the students can witness the game and make the trip at about one-half the usual cost.

No less than ten thousand people will be looking on at the Ohio game. The seal sale, it is feared, will be greater than the accommodations, since there are no north bleachers this year. Just how Director Ehler will seat the patrons without the old bleachers is a matter of conjecture, and by Saturday students believe Ehler will be forced to erect the temporary stands.

The varsity regulars are being given a hard week of work behind closed gates. Mucks is out in a suit and is putting for long distances. He will, in all probability, enter the Ohio game Saturday. There is little betting a present, owing to the scarcity of Ohio money.

STRENGTHENS ELIS FOR THE BIG GAMES

Captain Wilson.

Captain Wilson of Yale has come to the conclusion that a big shake-up of the team is necessary if Yale is to beat Harvard this year. A lot of hard work with more drill in the fundamentals of the game and plenty of signal drill to improve the work in the backfield is planned.

WISCONSIN TENNIS ASSOCIATION FORMED

Janesville, Beloit and Edgerton Are Included Among Membership—Annual Tournament Planned.

The Wisconsin Tennis association was formed Wednesday night at Milwaukee, when delegates from Milwaukee clubs and upstate cities gathered to plan a new style organization, with state titles for which only Wisconsin residents will be eligible. The officers elected were: President, Dr. N. A. Goddard, vice president, L. D. Smith, Wausau; secretary, J. L. Rogers, Oshkosh; corresponding secretary, R. O. Johnson, Milwaukee; treasurer, E. S. Beecher, Madison.

The new organization will be one of four districts, Milwaukee comprising one district. The Northern district will include Waupaca, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Neenah, Fond du Lac and Berlin. The Western district will include Madison, Stoughton, Edgerton, Whitewater and Beaver Dam, where the southern district will include West Bend, Racine, Kenosha, Beloit and Janesville.

The annual tournament, for which the date and place has not been chosen, will not be open to miscellaneous entries, but only to the singles and doubles champions of each district. The first tournament will probably be staged at Oshkosh, with the next at West Side courts, Milwaukee, though this will not be decided until May, when a schedule meeting will be held, attended by two delegates from each district.

The new association will not conduct in its tournament arrangements with the annual state championship held by the Town club of Milwaukee, but will be limited to Wisconsin residents, and the Town club tournament cups are usually won by Chicagoans.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

It is not going to be an easy matter to solve the present base ball problem, even if both big leagues are willing to lend a sympathetic ear. There is too much money involved to consider it of no importance. That the major leagues have fared better than their rival in the right to date is generally conceded by the baseball fan, but there is some real substantial backing behind the Fed movement, which, now that it has been picked for a big sum is not going to lie down without another fight. Baseball cannot be conducted along present lines for the reason that expenses are so high that only the clubs which are prominent in the race can expect to make money while four or five clubs must lose as much as the winners make. This is not a good business proposition, and conditions must be changed before the game can again prosper as it should.

It will be no easy matter to find a way to take care of the leading backers of the Federal league by inviting them into organized baseball. The acquisition of these men of wealth would help the game not a little. But the prices asked by those who are willing to sell are enormous, and after losing a lot of money in the Federal venture the backers of this league must dig down still deeper to get into the fold. There are some clubs which would gladly change hands, both of the St. Louis and the Cincinnati clubs. The fact that Moran had a good-hitting team pitted against mediocre pitching allowed him to win the pennant. Only once in four times would the Phillies meet a pitcher of class who would beat them, but they would wobble the remaining three to appear in a four-game series. It was because of the weakness of the other teams that the Phillies won. Moran's team would find it a hard matter to finish in the first division in the American league.

Without reflecting on the accomplishments of Manager Pat Moran, who piloted the Phillies to a pennant, his team is not in the same class with any one of the first four teams of the American league. In a series of seven games Detroit, Chicago and Washington could beat the Phillies, probably as easily as Boston did it. Moran has not a great ball team. There are a few decidedly clever players on it, but on the whole the team would not cut much of a figure were it in a league where the clubs are better balanced.

The one thing which the Phillies lack, and which is essential to the success of every modern ball team, is speed. Moran has a team of decidedly slow fellows. Stock and Bannister are the only fast ones. The fact that Moran had a good-hitting team pitted against mediocre pitching allowed him to win the pennant. Only once in four times would the Phillies meet a pitcher of class who would beat them, but they would wobble the remaining three to appear in a four-game series. It was because of the weakness of the other teams that the Phillies won. Moran's team would find it a hard matter to finish in the first division in the American league.

Prophets may not get honor in their own home town, but world series heroes get all that's coming to them, not only at home, but in neighboring towns. Capota, Cal., where Harry Hooper lives, has been joined by the nearby city of Santa Cruz in arranging a great big reception.

Ohio State Now In Conference Race As They Tied Illinois

Boughton.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—Ohio State, which has taken the place of Michigan in the western conference or Big Nine colleges, last Saturday gave every indication of being a good substitute for the Ann Arbor institution by tying the University of Illinois, last year's Big Nine gridiron champion.

In the bitterly fought struggle which resulted in a 3 to 3 tie, the Buckeye eleven showed powerful offensive and defensive strength. To the average followers of foot ball, and those who are acquainted with the inside points of the game Ohio State played a brand of football which would be hard to knock out of the game. In Captain Boughton, Ohio State has one of the best tackles in the conference, with the probable exception of Captain Buck of Wisconsin. The Buckeye tackle is a player who has football intuition, knows the duties of his position, and a performer who mixes in every play. Boughton was a power on the defense. He stopped practically every play sent off his tion for the lad whose home run ended the big series.

Most of the big eleven appear to have gone back to the game of old-fashioned football. The forward pass and the lateral pass are still on the list, but in the past week the scrubs at the big universities have been called upon to stop the hammer and tongs plunging attack of a few years ago.

So wonderful has been the showing of Dave Bancroft of the Phillies, both as a fielder and as a baseman this season, that he is now rated as one of the best in the country. Dave is making fans forget Maranville and others who were headliners last season. Some of the greatest shortstops the game ever knew have played with the Phillies. Bob Allen was classy twenty-five years ago, and one year he made a record for chances accepted by a shortstop, which was not broken until 1914, when Maranville set a new mark. Then along came Monte Cross, who didn't have to do his hat to any shortstop when he was a Quaker. Mike Doohan was the third on the list, and now comes Bancroft. Al could field, but Bancroft can do more—he can hit—and this makes him a mighty valuable side and frequently went to the other side of the line to assist in the checking of plays.

Winters Star Back.
Winters, left half back, is worthy of commendation. He not only kicked the goal from scrimmage against Illinois, but made innumerable gains on split interference plays and he received several forward passes in the final quarter, which placed the oval in a position where he sent it between the goal posts for the first score. He is a strong defensive player and tackles in such a manner that the runner is thrown to the ground with a thud.

Norton, the other half back, is a strong player offensively and defensively. He runs hard and low and seldom fails to make ground when the opposition is met. Sorenson, the full back, is another strong offensive player, who made consistent gains through the Illinois line on the split plays.

Yerges, quarter back, is a clever handler of the ball. Instead of playing directly behind the center, he receives the ball from a side position, allowing the center to hand the ball to him. The oval is not susceptible to the quarter and center work so well together that no time is lost in putting the ball into play. Yerges handles punts in a businesslike fashion and never makes attempts to catch the ball unless he is sure of his effort. In the Illinois game he frequently signaled for fair catches when he knew a fumble would result disastrously.

Bolen and Ginn are a stellar pair of ends. They cover kicks in the proper manner and are ever thoughtful of the principle to drive the catcher of kicks to the inside, where he can be sailed by other members of their team. They know how to box the tackles on offense and both follow the ball with accuracy.

Brothers Play Good Game.
H. J. Courtney, left tackle, and his brother, H. G. Courtney, right guard, and Knoll, the center, played good football. Courtney is a powerful champion, and considering the playing of Karch, the left guard, who looks to be as good as any lineman in the west, Ohio State has a forward wall which is equal to any seen in the west this year.

Generally speaking, Ohio State is represented by its best team in years. The players understand each other thoroughly, they are quick to see weakness in an opposing eleven, and they move to the points of attack with the necessary speed to stop the runner before he has made headway.

cog in the inner defense of the team and in the offensive strength. What is more, Dave can hit equally well either side of the plate.

POTATO AND FORAGE
CROPS ARE INCREASED
ON THE FRENCH REPORT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Paris, Oct. 21.—Senator Jules Meunier, former president of the cabinet, presiding at the annual meeting of the agricultural assembly, presented statistics showing that the potato and forage crops this year are so abundant as to compensate the shortage in wheat. The excess of hay produced over other years will enable the feeding of enough live stock to make up for all the necessary requisitions of meat for the army. "The culminating point in the meat crisis," he says,

"will come after the war when all the belligerent nations will have pressing needs with reduced means of production. Consequently the forage crop means quite as much to France as its production of wheat."

Ice Is an Economy

when used during the winter

Foods are perishable and need a temperature of 40 degrees to keep from spoiling and above 32 to keep from freezing. Janesville weather is no respecter of the non-user, but gives us a brand of weather hard to beat, from 20 degrees below to 70 degrees above, all in one week. This condition is not conducive to economical housekeeping.

Did you know that ice will keep things from freezing in your ice box except in extreme zero weather?

Ice during the winter will not cost you a cent if you do not agree with us in the spring that it's use has been an economy.

WEATHER FORECAST.

BEETS AND TOBACCO.

Rock county is one of the centers of the tobacco growing districts of the state. In times past it was also in the million dollar sugar beet district but the closing down of the beet factories owing to adverse tariff regulations has caused it to drop somewhat in this latter class. Dane county is also in both classes, and the Madison Democrat, in discussing "Beets and Tobacco," says some facts that apply to Rock county as well as Dane and are worth considering. The Democrat says:

"Other reasons may exist why Dane county farmers should quit raising tobacco, but certainly there is no justification of such a course in the partial failure of the crop of 1915 on account of weather conditions. Just because hail or frost or too much moisture has interfered with profitable production this year is not sufficient reason for refusal to cultivate an important crop. When the farmer keeps jumping around behind crop failures he generally misses the high spots and never gets much beyond mediocrity in the matter of efficiency in production."

"Special crops are bound to fail occasionally, and these failures should be met with optimistic philosophy. If, otherwise, the growing of tobacco is profitable, a failure now and then should not be discouraging."

"If the price is continually so low that it no longer is profitable to raise tobacco, this of course is the agriculturalist's war. It is warranted in raising a year after year if the income does not pay the cost of production and leave a fair margin of profit."

"A few years ago, it will be recalled, the farmers who had been raising beets in Wisconsin became discouraged because of the effects which it was supposed would follow tariff reduction. If those same farmers had produced crops of beets this year they would have found them profitable even beyond an average tobacco crop. Statistics show that the 6,095 acres of beets grown in Wisconsin in 1914 netted the producers $370,943—almost $61 per acre."

"Upon this showing it may be more profitable to raise beets than to raise tobacco, but if everybody grows beets and tobacco is neglected then, the price of the latter will advance, but what avails a high price if there is no product to sell? It would seem that a better policy would be to cultivate some tobacco and some beets, smaller areas of each perhaps, so as to be able to find a happy medium between the two, both as to yield and to price. Certainly the price of sugar will not materially decline as long as the European war continues, and nobody knows how long that will be. The price of beets will fall below the point of profitable production when the war ends is a possibility that cannot be predicted with any certainty whatever."

GROWTH OF SUFFRAGE.

The New York Globe, in commenting upon the growth of woman's suffrage throughout the United States, says:

"The story of the growth of suffrage sentiment in the United States indicates that this movement is a logical and necessary step in the development of present society. The early suffragists of a generation ago were simply laughed at as freaks and cranks. Hardly any one took the idea seriously until Wyoming, the first state to grant the vote to women, made the experiment in 1890. Colorado, Wyoming's nearest neighbor, watched the results of equal suffrage in Wyoming for twenty-four years, and then, finding that none of the evils predicted by the antis came true, granted the franchise to women in 1893. Utah and Idaho, neighbors of Colorado, followed in 1896."

"For fourteen years the nation watched to see how the reform worked in the four suffrage states, and then within the brief period of four years, from 1910 to 1914, the voters of eight states decided to admit women to the ballot box. Equal suffrage has been carried as a serious political issue into half the states of the Union. It is now the leading subject of interest in New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts. The president of the United States and three members of his cabinet have signified their intention of voting in favor of granting the franchise to women. A poll of the press of the country, conducted by the Literary Digest, shows that out of 526 editors responding 291 were in favor of woman suffrage, thirty-eight undecided, and only ninety-seven negative. Of the various communities studied all over the nation the sentiment in 237 was reported favorable, 133 undecided, and only 156 negative."

The interesting fact is that the states which have adopted suffrage have, with the exception of Illinois, been states bordering on those where equal suffrage had previously been established, and where the voters, by close acquaintance with its results, were convinced of its reasonableness and public benefit. Certainly, if during the period suffrage had resulted in any of the imaginary evils which seem to frighten some of the reactionaries in New York just now, the movement never would have had the growth that it has gained."

"The reasons for the growth of the equal suffrage movement are obvious. Its effects where it has been tried have been satisfactory. This is shown by the fact that in the suffrage states the sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of it. Of the 120 editors in those states replying to the question of the Literary Digest, ninety-eight were in favor of equal suffrage, fourteen undecided, and only sixteen opposed."

BE BOOSTERS.
Janesville citizens will have an opportunity to show they are boosters on Friday evening and all day Saturday by attending the county fair held in the interests of the Y. M. C. A. It is a good cause and worthy of support and citizens generally can aid in the work materially and at the same time have a most enjoyable entertainment.

The next big show to follow is the manufacturing exhibit of the "Made in Janesville" products at the auditorium. This with the boosters' sale will demonstrate to the general public what Janesville has to offer to the shopping world as a whole better than anything else could.

This getting behind Janesville and Janesville interests is going to do a world of good. It means that by concerted action in every quarter the city can gain prominence that it otherwise would lack by only individual efforts. Boost your home town and it will become a habit before you know it.

What England appears to need more than anything else just at present is a good, first-class cabinet-maker. The many parts of the present structure are proving defective and failing to pieces.

Really, October is worth waiting for when it comes right down to facts. No month in the year has thus far won the approval of the citizens generally, as has this month thus far.

TRY THIS OLD TIME WAY TO DARKEN HAIR

Sulpho-Sage is Based on Formula Favorite for Generations.

An investigation among the druggists in town shows that the most popular treatment for restoring color to gray hair is the good old fashioned Sage Tea and Sulphur mixture. You can get it freshly mixed by asking your druggist for a 50c bottle of Sulpho-Sage. This fine toilet preparation has all the merits of the old time compound plus the benefits of other highly valuable ingredients. It is widely endorsed for restoring gray, faded or streaked hair to its natural color. But a few applications are needed to bring back the rich, glossy shade that every one admires, and produces a fascinating contrast. It is pleasant to apply; works so naturally that no one knows you are using it.

FOUR LADS IN JAIL CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE

Still Hold Jewish Boys Arrested In Evansville and Sentenced Here Until Further Investigation.

"We've had 'yegmen,' burglars, thieves, shoplifters, forgers and murderers in the Rock county jail, but these four 'kids' of these never caused one-half as much trouble as these four 'kids'," said Turnkey William Wogan as he lead William Hazz, Sam Gottleb, the four Chicago Jewish boys, from fourteen to sixteen years of age, back into the cells. A Chicago man named M. Cohen, who is not a relative of any of the lads, attempted to interview the four, but failed, from the information he wanted from the youngsters about their past life they are about as 'newsy' as a clam.

When talk is about their going back to Chicago, they all talk at once, but when the subject is broached of their being inmates, past or present, of a institution, their tongues are clamped tight in their mouths. They only shrug their shoulders and smile. The suspicion all of them are escaped from a Chicago institution when it was covered one wore shoes such as are furnished in prisons and schools of correction.

"Where did you buy them shoes?" the lads were asked.

"Ooie, I bought them, sure; where do you suppose I got 'em?" was the answer.

Further questioning brought out the fact that the little sixteen year "kid" held the attitude that it was no one's business where he got them or how he got them.

Money has been furnished for the transportation of the four back to Chicago, but it is doubtful if they will be released until some relative or officer comes for them, or more is known about them.

Since being committed to the jail they have made life miserable for all who are connected with the institution. They were placed together in one cell room, and before two hours were up they had the whole place in a state of the minutest detail. It was a case of a number of personal property of a number of men now at the state's prison in one of the cells, being held until they are released. The young vandals ransacked every bundle and threw all papers up and scattered the litter all over the cell house. They played tag around the bars, and "stumped" the leaders of the cell.

But when one of them is asked if they were inmates of a reform school or had ever been arrested before, they are as quiet and reserved as possible, proceeding under a policy of "safety first" in answering all questions.

HONOR PAID TO MRS. JACOBS BOND

Composer of "A Perfect Day" Receives Quite An Ovation at Apollo Theatre.

Janesville turned out on mass to do honor to the composer of "A Perfect Day," at the Apollo last evening. The beautiful works of Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond were rendered at the close of the picture play by Miss Martha DaMert of Chicago, assisted by Mrs. E. B. Looft of Milton Junction.

Standing room at the first show at which Mrs. Bond was present, was at a premium. The public loves the songs written by this former Janesville woman and their appreciation was most effectively demonstrated last evening.

Miss DaMert rendered beautifully in solo, "A Perfect Day," and "I'm Awaiting for You." Mrs. Looft accompanied her on the piano, and the two sang in duet, "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Bond expressed her appreciation and thanks to both ladies for the pleasure they had given her.

Disie Janis was seen in one of her latest picture plays, "Nearly a Lady." It was an excellent and amusing play, and she had the opportunity for many Janesvilleans, among them, to see her masquerading in masculine habiliments.

JACKSON WILL HAVE EXAMINATION FRIDAY

Paul Howe, Convicted Highwayman, Will Be Brought From Prison to Testify in Hearing.

Friday morning George Jackson, of Beloit, now in custody at the Rock county jail, will be taken before the Beloit municipal court for his preliminary examination on Friday. He is charged with being implicated in the robbery of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad station at Beloit. District Attorney G. Dunwiddie, by means of a writ of habeas corpus, will have Paul Howe come from the state's prison to testify in the examination against Jackson.

Howe, it was remembered, was sentenced to seven years in Waupun when he pleaded guilty to holding up a station agent at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot. During his arraignment in court Howe made a lengthy confession in which he implicated Jackson as being an accomplice in the holding up of the Northwestern station, acting as "lookout man" while he did the robbery. Through some malice or trick of the authorities Howe, it appears, confessed to his whole lot of crime and gave in detail how Jackson was involved in the holdup crime or crimes. Jackson at the jail steadfastly held his innocence of the offense, but it is expected that Howe's confession and testimony will prove sufficient for his being held over for trial. District Attorney Dunwiddie this morning reported that Howe will be brought to the examination on the stand for the state in the examination.

ISSUES CHALLENGE TO BELOIT'S MAYOR

Alderman Winegar Would Submit Figures on Boulevard Lighting to a Citizens' Committee.

Beloit, Oct. 21.—Alderman A. J. Winegar of the second Rock county district has taken issue with Mayor W. Adams in a controversy over boulevard lighting which has disrupted the city government here for about two months. Last night Mayor Adams issued a veto of the council's action in accepting specifications for a system of boulevard lights and he cited about a dozen cities which were getting their boulevard lights cheaper than Beloit was supposed to.

Today Alderman Winegar challenged the mayor to appear before a meeting of a committee of citizens to show all the figures he had. Alderman Winegar said the mayor held figures on over twenty cities, the figures of which he did not cite.

Alderman Winegar said he will resign if a committee of fair-minded citizens does not decide he is right and the mayor is wrong, and he leaves it to the mayor whether or not he shall resign if he is found to be wrong. This challenge was made in an open letter today.

One onlooker there had not been searched. Young Jeb bore the credentials of a special deputy sheriff, and under his coat was a holster with its flap unbuttoned. While the panel was being selected, while lawyers wrangled and witnesses testified, while the court gazed off with half-closed eyes, rousing only to overrule or sustain a motion, young Jeb sat with his arms on the table, and never did his eyes leave the face of the accused.

It was a very expeditious trial. Judge Sidering glanced at the faces of Old Milt and Young Jeb, and had no desire to prolong the agony of those hours. The defense halfheartedly relied upon the old device of a false alibi, which the state promptly punctured. Even the lawyers seemed in haste to be through, and set a limit of their arguments.

At the end his honor read brief instructions, and the panel was locked in its room.

Then the McBriars drew a little closer around the chair where Old Milt waited, and the militia captain strengthened his guard outside and began unostentatiously sprinkling uniformed men through the dingy courtroom until the hodge-podge through was flecked with blue.

At length there came a rap on the door of the juryroom, and instantly the low drone of voices fell to a hush. His honor poured a glass of water from the chipped pitcher at his elbow, while Luke Thixton and Milt McBriar, for all their immobility of feature, braced themselves. Like some restless animal of many legs, the rough throng along the courtroom benches scraped its feet on the floor.

Young Jeb shifted his chair a little so that the figure of the defendant might be in an uninterrupted line of vision. His right hand quietly slipped under his coat, and his fingers loosened a weapon in its holster and nursed the trigger.

Then, with a dragging of shoe-leather, the twelve "good men and true" shuffled to a semicircle before the bench, gazing stolidly and blankly at the rows of battered law books which served his honor as a background.

There they stood awkwardly in the gaze of all. Judge Sidering glanced into the beaming countenance of their foreman and inquired in that bored voice which seems a judicial affectation even in questions of life and death: "Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

The foreman nodded. The sheet of paper, which he passed to the clerk, had been signed by more than one juror with a cross because he could not write.

"We, the jury," read the clerk in a clear voice, "find the defendant, Luke Thixton, guilty as charged in the indictment." There, although he had not yet reached the end, he indulged in a dramatic pause, then read on the more important clause in the terms of the Kentucky law which leaves the placing of the penalty in the hands of the jurors—"and fix his punishment at death."

As though relieved from a great pressure, young Jeb McNash withdrew his hand from his holster and settled back in his chair with fixed muscles. Judge Sidering's formal question broke in on the dead quiet, "So say you all, gentlemen?" and twelve shaggy heads nodded wordless affirmation.

Soldiers filed in from the rear. In less than thirty seconds the prisoner had disappeared. Outside the galling guns remained in place, and the troops patrolled the streets.

For two days the McBriars stayed in town, but the troops lingered longer, and in that time Luke and again been taken back to Louisville.

Once more Old Milt led back a disgruntled faction with no more spirited a program than to go home and bide its time again. When they brought Luke back to hang him, his friends would have one final chance.

A seeming of quiet, under which hot wrath smoldered, settled over hill and cove, but a new note began to run through the cabins of the McBriar dependents. It was a note of warning, faith and loyalty for their chief.

OLD MILT AND THE DISGRUNTLED FACTION.

his dominion was now a thing upon which decay had set its seal, and under his grave face he masked a breaking heart. His star was setting, and since he was no longer young and utterly incapable of bending, he sickened slowly through the wet winter, and men spoke of him as an invalid.

With Milt's fall, there was no one to take up the reins of clan government, and those elements that had been held together only by his iron dominance began drifting asunder.

One mill day when a group of McBriars met with their sacks of grain at a water-mill, someone put the question: "Who's a-goin' ter go down thar an' take Luke Thixton away from thar?"

There was a long silence, and at last a voice drawled: "Hit hain't a goin' ter be me. What's Luke Thixton ter me, anyhow? He didn't never lend me no money."

"I reckon thar's a heap o' sense in that," answered another. "Pears like, when I come ter recollect, most of thar fightin' an' fursin' I've done in my time hain't been in my own quarrels nobow." And slowly that spirit spread.

When Anse Hayve went over to the school one day Juanita took him again to the rifle-rack, now once more well filled. "Have a look, my lord barbarian," she laughed. "Mars is paying me tribute. So shall it ever be with tyrannys."

Slowly, and one by one, Anse Hayve took up the pieces and examined them.

"It ain't only Mars that's paying ye tribute," he thought, but he only said: "That's all right. I seem to see more McBriars guns there than Hayve guns. It would suit me all right if ye got the last one of 'em."

"Hain't you as well hang yours there, too?" she teased. "I'm still willing to give you the honors of war." But he only smiled. "I'll hang mine up last of all, I reckon. Luke Thixton ain't hung yet, and there's other clouds a brewin' besides that."

"What clouds?" she asked. "There was a bunch of surveyors through here lately," he replied slowly. "They just sort of looked 'round and went away. Some day they'll come back."

"And then?"

Anse Hayve shrugged his shoulders. "I may need my gun," he said. "Not until it became certain that he must die did Old Milt send for his son, or even permit him to be told of his illness. But just as the winter's siege was ending Young Milt came home, and two days later the mountains heard that the old feudist was dead."

Brother Anse Talbott and Juanita and a doctor who had come from Lexington were witnesses to that leave-taking. They saw the old man beckon feebly to the boy. Young Milt came and sat on the edge of the bed, schooling his features as he waited the final injunctions which, by his code, would be mandatory for life.

They all waited to hear the old lion break out in a final burst of vindictiveness, to see him lay upon his boy's young shoulders the unfinished ordeals of his hatreds. But it was the eye of the father, not the feudist, that gazed up from the pillow. His wasted fingers lay affectionately on his son's knee and his voice was gentle.

His Honor Had Directed That Every Man—Save Officials—Should Be Disarmed at the Door.

"S'en," said the old man, "I'd love ter hev ye live at peace of ye kin. I've done tried thar other way an' hit's kill me. I'd rather ye'd let my rights be buried along with my body. Anse Hayve's goin' ter run things in these mountings. He's a smarter man than me. I couldn't never make no peace with Anse Hayve, but the things that's always stood betwixt us lays a long way back. Mebbe you an' him might pull together an' end thar feud. I leaves thar with you, but hit took death ter make me see hit—"

Here he broke off exhaustedly, and for a time seemed fighting for breath. At last he added: "I've knowed all along thar Luke killed Fletcher McNash. I thought I'd ought ter tell ye."

A week after the death of the old leader Young Milt rode over to the house of Anse Hayve, and there he found Jeb McNash. The two young men looked at each other without expression. Just after the death of his father Jeb would not willingly have renewed their quarrel, and as for Young Milt, he no longer felt resentment.

"Anse," said the heir to McBriar leadership, "I rid over here ter offer ye my hand. I've done found out that Luke is as guilty as hell. I didn't believe hit afore. So fur as I'm concerned, he kin hang, an' I'm goin' ter tell every McBriar man that will harken ter me thar same thing. So fur as I'm concerned," went on the lad, "I'm against the shootin' of any man from the lare'l."

Just as the earliest flowers began to peep out with shy faces in the woods, and the first softness came to the air, men began rearing a scaffold in the courthouse yard at Peril.

One day a train brought Luke Thixton back to the hills, but this time only a few soldiers came with him, and they were not needed. Juanita tried to forget the significance of that Friday, but she could not, for all the larger boys were absent from school, and all day Thursday the road had been sprinkled with horses and wagons.

She knew with a shudder that they were going to town to see the hanging. A gruesome fascination of interest attached to so unkind of an event as a McBriar clansman dying on a Hayve scaffold with his people standing by.

But Luke Thixton, going to his death there among enemies, went without flinching, and his snarling lips even twisted a bit derisively when he mounted the scaffold, as they had twisted when he declined Good Anse Talbott's ministrations in the jail.

Since he must die among enemies, he would give them no weakness over which to gloat in memory.

He raised his head, and his snarl turned slowly and unpleasantly into a grin of contempt, and his last words were a picturesque curse called down alike on the heads of the foes who put him to death and on the false friends who had failed him.

Afterward Young Milt and Bad Anse shook hands, and the younger man said to the older:

"Now that I've proved to ye that I meant what I said, I reckon we can make a peace thar'll endure a spell, can't we?"

And Anse answered: "Milt, I've been hopin' we could ever since the day we watched for the feller that aimed to burn down the school."

CHAPTER XXII.

That spring new buildings went up at the school and brave rows of flowers appeared in the garden.

At first her college had been a kindergarten in effect, but now as Juanita stood on the porch at recess she wondered if any other schoolmistress had ever drawn about her such a strange assortment of pupils. There were little tots in bright calico, glorying in big bows of cotton hair-ribbon—but submitting grudgingly to the combing of the hair they sought to adorn. There were larger boys and girls, too, and even a half-dozen men just now pitching horseshoes and smoking pipes—and they also were learning to read and write.

In the afternoons women rode in on mules and horses or came on foot, and Juanita taught them not only letters and figures, but lessons looking to cleaner and more healthful habits.

May came with smiles and songs in the sky from sunrise to sunset, and in the woods, where the moisture rose and tender greens were sending out their hopeful shoots, the wild flowers unfolded themselves. Then Juanita Holland and Anse Hayve would go together up to the ridge and watch the great awakening across the town and gray humps of the hills, and under their feet was a carpet of glowing petals.

Anse Hayve had never had such a companionship, and hidden things began to waken in him.

So when she stood there, with the spring breeze caressing the curling tendrils at her temples, and blowing her gingham skirt about her slim ankles, and pointed off, smiling, to his noise, he dropped his head in mock shame.

"Only the castle moodily gloomed to itself apart," she quoted in accusation, and the man laughed boyishly.

"I reckon ye haven't seen the castle lately," he said. "Ye wouldn't hardly know it. It's gettin' all cleaned up an' made civilized. The eagle's nest is turnin' into a sure-enough bird cage."

"Who's changing now?" she bantered. "Am I civilizing you?"—her eyes danced with badinage—"are you preparing to get married?"

His face flushed and then became almost surly.

"Who'd marry me?" he savagely demanded.

"I'm sure I don't know," she teased. "Whom have you asked?"

He bent a little forward and said slowly:

"Once ye told me I was wasting my youth. Ye 'lowed I ought to be captain of my soul. If I found a woman that I wanted and she wouldn't have me—what ought I to do about it?"

"There are two courses prescribed in all the correspondence schools, and both are perfectly simple," she announced with mock gravity. "One is simply to take the lady first and ask her afterward. The other is even easier; get another girl."

"Oh," he said. He was hurt because she had either not seen or had pretended not to see his meaning. She had not grasped the presumptuous dream and effrontery of his heart.

His voice for a moment became enigmatical as he added: "Sometimes I think ye've played hell in these mountains."

That spring silent forces were at work in the hills; as silent and less beneficent than the stirring sap and the brewing of showers.

Three men in the mountains were now fully convinced that what the world needs the world will have, and they were trying to find a solution to the question which might make their own people sharers in the gain, instead of victims. These three were Anse and Milt and Jeb, and their first step was the effort to hold landowners in check, and make them slow to sell and guarded in their bargaining.

Jim Fletcher, a mountain man who had for years drifted between Tribulation and Winchester trading in cattle and timber, made a journey through the hills that spring, and was everywhere received as "home folks." For him there were no bars of distrust, and he was able for that reason to buy land right and left. Though he had paid for it a price above the average, it was a price far below the value of the coal and timber it contained, and Jim had picked his land.

Anse Hayve and his associates knew that Jim Fletcher had been subsidized; that the money he spent so lavishly was not his own money; and that he came as a stalking-horse, but they did not know that he had been to Louisville and had conferred there with Mr. Trevor. Neither did they know at once that he had visited the cabins of every malcontent among both the former fastions, and that he was a mischievous mischief-maker laying here in the hills the foundations for a new feud.

Two country negroes while waiting at a railway station observed a candy machine, which upon the introduction of a penny into its interior promised to return a piece of confectionery. "Drop in a penny and pull the handle with a jerk," read the inscription. One of the pair dropped in his coin, after laboriously spelling out the words of instruction. Then he began looking all over the machine. "What maffah?" asked his companion. "Dis heah sign," said the other, "says fo' to pull de handle wif a jerk, but Ah kin find no jerk."

An ingenious clerk in the British admiralty was asked by a gentleman with whom he had a slight acquaintance whether he might come to his study to see a review of the troops. "Certainly," replied the clerk. "May I bring my wife?" "Yes," "I have two daughters; may they come?" "By all means." A second time the gentleman called to ask whether his nieces might be added to the band. To this the clerk cheerfully assented. "We cannot be sufficiently grateful to you," said the gentleman, "for enabling us to have so good a view of the review." "I am afraid," answered the clerk, "that you and your family will not see very much of it, for my room looks out into a back yard."

A new territorial, who had not quite learned his business, was on sentry duty one night, when a friend brought a cake from the canteen. As he sat on the grass eating the cake the major sauntered up in undress uniform. The sentry, not recognizing him, did not salute, and the major stopped and said: "What's that you have there?" "Cake," said the sentry, good-naturedly. "Have a bite." The major frowned. "Do you know who I am?" he asked. "No," said the sentry, "unless you are the major's while I salute?"

The major shook his head. "Guess again," he growled. "No," said the sentry, "here the sentry laughed. "Maybe you're the major himself." "That's right. I'm the major," was the stern reply. The sentry—rambled to his feet. "Good gracious!" he exclaimed. "Hold the cake, will you, while I salute?"

MINISTER GIVES TESTIMONY.

The Rev. C. M. Knight, Havana, Fla., writes: For three months I suffered intense pain in kidneys and back, which at times laid me up completely. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after trying various remedies without result I decided to try the Foley treatment. I was relieved almost with the first dose and it is a fact that I used only 14 bottles when all of the pains disappeared. I am 55 years of age and now feel like a young man again.—W. T. Sherer.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Oct. 21.—Miss Clara May Luderman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Luderman, and Mr. Geo. Keimbaum were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, who live on the Luderman farm south of town. Rev. Henry Oide performed the ceremony. The young couple will live on the Keimbaum farm on the Town Line.

Mr. Clarence Hartwig and Miss Edith Hoyt were married yesterday afternoon at Fort Atkinson. A reception was given them last evening at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartwig, north of the city. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hoyt of this city. They expect to make their home in Fort Atkinson.

T. B. Lash has purchased the Henry Bunde place on Center street. Mr. and Mrs. Lash are as yet undecided about moving into the home.

Mayor D. P. Zull and Aldermen W. B. Kier, J. D. Duffin, P. Berfeld were at Jefferson and Watertown yesterday getting ideas on river troughs.

Mrs. Alma Hinsel of Ripon visited sister, Mrs. Arthur Baker, a few days this week.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Reddy on Wednesday.

Mrs. John Deneen and children of Milwaukee visited her sisters, Ellen and Mary Dyer, here the first of the week.

Group 3 of the Janesville district of Epworth League will hold a rally at the M. E. church Friday and Saturday.

Last Thursday evening, Miss Minnie Messerschmidt entertained eight of the local telephone office girls to a supper party at her home on Whitewater street. The girls had a most delightful time. They spent the evening dancing, singing and a musical evening in general. A four course supper was served, which was followed with the "Slumber" part of the evening's program.

Miss Ethel Lerwill of Janesville is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lerwill.

Mr. Henry Messerschmidt was in Madison over Sunday, visiting his sister.

Yesterday afternoon in the High school assembly room was a meeting of the Mothers' Association and it proved a very entertaining and profitable meeting. Some over sixty were present and much interest was taken both by the mothers present and also by the teachers. A short musical program was given, and a paper was read by the West side eighth grade, an instrumental solo by Florence Fricker and a vocal solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" by Mrs. A. A. Reed.

A very excellent paper by Miss Addo Reed, the eighth grade teacher on the west side. The paper was on the following points: Importance of music, Lessons of Play, Competition, Inactivity, Development of Leaders, Fairness, Courtesy, and the need of play material in Whitewater.

Alfred Anderson, who lives southeast of Whitewater, on Heart Prairie, met with very serious injuries yesterday, but just how bad the doctors are as yet unable to say although last evening they said his chances were better for recovery.

Running a corn binder and when he reached the corner of the field by the road he hung the lines on the lever and was cutting the machine. While he was doing this, a neighbor came along with a cow tied to the back of the wagon, and as the man halted to speak with Mr. Anderson, the cow rubbed against the fence and frightened the team on the binder.

Anderson grabbed for the lines, but was thrown under the machine. The binder was tipped over and smashed badly and Mr. Anderson was dragged through a wire fence for some distance. It was a very bad accident and his many friends hope for his recovery.

He is a nephew of William Halgerson, who lives on Fremont street. Mrs. Olive Friedel of Fort Atkinson was a guest yesterday of her cousin, Mrs. Chas. Pollock.

N. A. Kinney is subpoenaed on a case in Butler, Mont. and leaves tomorrow for that place. He is called to identify a man who is claiming to be Chas. Graham, but who is thought to be Sullivan Castle. Mr. Castle lived here about three years ago and was an old soldier, drawing a pension. He left here and went to Watertown, S. D., and later moved farther west. He seems to have been affected at times by a mental derangement and is now claiming to be Charles Graham, who is dead. Mr. Kinney was well acquainted with Castle and is therefore called to Montana on the case.

William Lyman of Chicago and Mrs. Mary Rockwell were here yesterday to see their sister, Mrs. Olive Handy. Mrs. Rockwell remained for a few days.

Mrs. L. B. Caswell, Jr., of Fort Atkinson has been visiting Mrs. Arthur McGraw.

Mrs. Albert Anderson of Chicago has been visiting in Whitewater this week.

Ed. Graham sprained his ankle Tuesday while unloading freight from the depot.

What University?

Gains were most pronounced in the second half of the fiscal year and if the record made by month of July is maintained until the end of December which seems probable from present indications, the total exports of automobiles in the calendar year 1915 will be well above $120,000,000.

All parts of the world are buying American motor trucks and passenger automobiles, about 80 A different countries being represented in the year's sales. Our motor trucks are being sold most largely in England, France and Russia. In Greece, Denmark, Sweden and Serbia sales have also reached unparalleled proportions. Increased sales are likewise being made in many countries far removed from the war zone, including Canada, Cuba, Central America, Java, Australia, British South Africa and in
